The farther forward you grip your weapon the better able you will be able to manage the recoil. You will also be able to move, or "drive" the gun from target to target or engage a moving target more efficiently. Textured surfaces for a reliable grip Resistant to weather extremes, chemical exposure and abuse Includes a Grip Plug for storage inside the grip Fits standard MIL-STD 1913 Picatinny tactical rails The Stark Express Grip allows the shooter's forearm and hand to remain in a more natural position whether held extended and on-target or at the low ready position, allowing the forward hand and forearm to assume a "radically normal" position providing ease of movement, comfort and quicker action than any other grip. This angled grip is comfortable - in "Stark" contrast to traditional fore grips - comfortable enough to hold in position during long wait periods, whether that's in a dynamic threat situations or sport hunting.
